In this series of studies we will be looking at what it means for us to be 'Partners in Mission' with the individuals and organisations we support at Holy Saviour. There are varying levels of possible engagement with the different organisations but these studies began from discussion about how to strengthen our links with Namalemba, with which we can engage at all sorts of levels and that will be reflected in the way we look briefly at that link each time. Each week there will be the opportunity to reflect on an aspect of how we can engage with others as 'partners in mission' and also a focus on the organisations which we support.

Most of our mission partners send out regular information on-line and in magazines or prayer leaflets. Our local links to our mission partners may have leaflets or magazines you could make use of.

The Bible studies will focus in particular on Paul's letter to the Philippians. They were definitely his partners in his mission. That's how he describes them in Philippians 1.5. They took a lively interest in his ministry in other places. They supported him financially. Paul preferred to be able to preach in places without asking local people to support him in any way, so there was no appearance of people paying for the Gospel message. He was able to do so because the Christians in Philippi often sent financial support, as well as sending church members like Epaphroditus who had been sent to take financial support and to encourage Paul when he was in prison in Rome (Philippians 4.10-20). There it is described as a two way relationship of giving and receiving. (N.B. We will look at some of the passages more than once, like the description of the links between Paul, Timothy and Epaphroditus in 2.19-30, which illustrates more than one aspect of partnership in mission. Try to focus on how such passages illustrate the particular theme for that study.)

We hope that groups will have ideas about how we can be involved with and support our mission partners. Please feed back your ideas to Brian Parfitt, our Homegroups' Coordinator, who will edit and pass them on to our World Mission Group.

Groups may well feel that there are ways they as a group might want to respond, perhaps by developing a prayer link or contact with one of our Mission Partners or with individuals or projects in Namalemba. It would be good if that could happen. We will give what help we can to make that possible.
